

Last Friday was a lot of fun because this day was International Day at my school. In the morning I came to school early, three classmates and I DECORATED THE China and Taiwan table. We had a lot of Chinese food and brought things to represent Chinese culture.

In the auditorium there were students from many different countries who performed songs and dances. The Chinese students wore traditional costumes. Then we showed how to celebrate Chinese New Year.

The last performance was to show how many different countries are at our school. I raised my sign which said, "Taiwan." After that we sang "We are the World" for a happy ending.

Outside we ate food from many countries, Many foods were my favorite, I think I gained over three pounds this time.

In the evening I called my daughter and e-mailed the website address to her and told her it was great fun for me. Unfortunately, everything looked vague in the video, but my daughter said how she knew me because she said my head was very bright, so she knew that is my dad.

In summary, This was my first time participating in International Day. It was fantastic.
